The St. Louis Metropolitan Police Department To Serve and Protect

Mission Statement

The mission of the St. Louis Metropolitan Police Department is to protect, serve and assist citizens when conditions arise that may affect the well being of the individual or the community. Cooperating with others in the community, police will work to prevent and detect crime, protect life and property, and achieve a peaceful society, free from the fear of crime and disorder. Members of the department will strive continually for excellence and maintain the peace through service, integrity, leadership and fair treatment to all.

Letter from the President of the Board of Police Commissioners

No one in public service works harder than men and women who make up the St. Louis Metropolitan Police Department.

This year, and every year, St. Louis' neighborhoods and business districts benefit from the everyday good work of the department's nearly 2,000 officers and civilian employees.

One of those officers, Robert Stanze, made the ultimate sacrifice to the community as, in August 2000, he was killed in the line of duty. His loss is mourned by all of St. Louis.

The department had other significant events, accomplishments, and important work in progress.

The Board of Police Commissioners named Col. Joseph J. Mokwa the city's 32nd Chief of Police, an outstanding department veteran of 30 years. Before his appointment as Chief, Colonel Mokwa served all parts of the St. Louis community, most recently as Assistant Chief of Police and before that as Commander of the Bureau of Investigation (Chief of Detectives).

The Board, along with the United States Justice Department, started work to promote better communication between the community and the department and to develop systems for citizen review of police operations, especially police use of force.

The Department's Information Services and Communications divisions deployed a computer "Enterprise System," that revolutionizes dispatching and report writing, and puts fully integrated information in the field for the benefit of officers. This initiative is just the latest chapter in the Department's long history of technology leadership among police agencies.

I hope you find the 2001 Report to the Community to be helpful, something that confirms your confidence in the St. Louis Metropolitan Police Department and assures you of its dynamic future in servicing the citizens of the City of St. Louis.

Sincerely,

Col. Edward M. Roth
President, Board of Police Commissioners

Message from the Chief of Police

The St. Louis Metropolitan Police Department has long been considered one of the nation's finest law enforcement agencies. On May 11, 2001, I was fortunate to be selected as the 32nd Chief of Police for the City of St. Louis.

I entered this position fully aware of the wonderful traditions of leadership and service that have placed this Department at the forefront of law enforcement agencies, both in the metropolitan area and the nation.

During the first 30 days in office, I submitted a 90-day strategic plan for the Department that examined both internal and external relations. The cornerstone of the plan is the development of an advisory committee, consisting of senior management. The role of the committee is to assist in creating strategies to help the Department provide the highest level of service to the community and provide employees the tools and resources needed to perform their jobs.

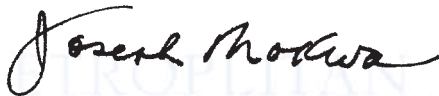

Another key component focuses on developing a community-based approach to curtailing violence in our neighborhoods. Intervention is the most effective tool we have to combat crime. By building partnerships with key community supporters such as the Clergy Coalition, the Office of the Mayor, the U.S. Attorney and the Holy Ground Initiative, we can identify and rid our streets of the corrosive criminal activity facing us today.

I am also committed to building a diverse and dedicated police department that reflects and serves the citizens of St. Louis. To do this, recruitment and retention of qualified officers must be a priority. Department leadership must provide an environment that articulates a commitment to its employees, commissioned and civilian. Open communication, quality training, state-of-the-art equipment, career opportunities including internships and mentoring programs are the foundation to good employee morale.

In the coming months, I will join the Board of Police Commissioners in addressing the many challenges that face this Department. With community support and the very best from the men and women of the SLMPD, we will continue to serve St. Louis with pride, honor and commitment.

This report was prepared to highlight some of the many initiatives taken over the 2000-2001 fiscal year. I hope you enjoy reading this publication and I look forward to serving you.

Sincerely,

Colonel Joseph J. Mokwa
Chief of Police

The Enterprise System

On July 9, 2001, the Department unveiled the first phase of the Enterprise System. A select committee comprised of both civilian and commissioned employees worked for a year on the planning and design of the system. Ultimately they chose Intergraph Public Safety's policing software and dubbed it the Enterprise System.

The goal was to update the Department's aging Computer Aided Dispatch (CAD) and Police Incident Reporting (PIRS) systems. These systems didn't allow for upgrades, and repairs were almost impossible. They were also not capable of retrieving and sharing information. The Enterprise System has corrected those problems, changing the face of policing for the Department. The new Windows-based law enforcement system runs on a personal computer format and provides new crime analysis tools.

The fully-integrated system allows data to be entered into the Department's system and is immediately available to all users. This undoubtedly will speed up the process of police report writing and reduce the amount of time officers spend generating reports.

The Enterprise System is being implemented in phases and will be complete by mid-year 2002. The first phase impacted CAD, creating new incident and disposition codes for officers and updating how the Communications Division takes and dispatches calls for service.

The second phase of the system places a new Mobile CAD product, called I/Mobile and laptop computers in all patrol cars. Barbara Wright, Director of Information Services said, "This enables officers to receive assignments, view any descriptions that dispatchers type out, and make dispositions or draw complaint numbers, all from the laptops."

The final phase of the project is a new police reporting and records management system, called I/Leads-RMS. It will replace the Department's current PIRS system. Once implemented, officers will then be able to write reports directly from laptops in the patrol cars, eliminating the need to return to the area patrol to complete reports. "We are on-track to pilot this new software in May of 2002," stated Wright. "With this new system we expect a substantial improvement in the amount of time it takes for a police report to be available to the public."

The Department's new system is currently being used in other major cities such as: Newark, NJ, Ft. Lauderdale, FL and Memphis, TN.

The St. Louis Regional Ceasefire Initiative

In a unique collaboration, the St. Louis Metropolitan Police Department, the Mayor's Office, the United States Attorney's Office and other agencies teamed up to create the Ceasefire Initiative, designed to combat youth violence in St. Louis City. The Initiative, which has been in existence for three years, is modeled after similar successful programs in Boston and Indianapolis. The goal is to turn the tide of youth violence with intervention and prevention.

The Ceasefire strategy offers alternatives to a life of crime by intervening in the lives of young people who have experienced trouble with the law. The Initiative, which also takes tough action against youths that commit violent crimes, is coordinated through the U. S. Attorney's Office.

"The Department is held accountable for the level of crime in our city and therefore it is responsible for exploring different methods to reduce crime," stated Sergeant Robert Heimberger, Special Projects Director for the Department. "The Ceasefire Initiative is an excellent opportunity to make a positive impact in the lives of young people."

All the cooperating agencies agree that in order to effectively fight crime and have a positive impact on these young people the solution must be a federal, state and local program to fight youth violence.

The Department supports Ceasefire by providing the services of the Mobile Reserve, Gang, Homicide and Consent to Search Units. These units are regularly deployed in targeted areas.

" The Ceasefire Initiative is an excellent opportunity to make a positive impact in the lives of young people."

The Gang Unit uses a variety of intervention strategies to help vulnerable youth. The Unit conducts assemblies with area middle and high school students and maintains a comprehensive list of gang-involved youths. The Department also operates the Consent to Search program in conjunction with Ceasefire. It is designed to get guns out of the hands of young people and link them to social service programs. The primary objective is to remove the gun from the home and connect the youth and guardians with support options.

Over the last year, programs have manifested through this Ceasefire effort, including the Night Watch Program. St. Louis Family Court assigns high-risk juveniles a curfew, then St. Louis police officers and deputy juvenile officers make unscheduled nightly home visits to ensure they are meeting the mandated curfews.

Currently under the Ceasefire Initiative the Department is working to develop a “Most Violent Offenders List”, which will help law enforcement agencies identify and profile offenders who pose the most dangerous threat to the community.

The Department, St. Louis University and other partners also are working to create the St. Louis Metropolitan Public Safety Institute. The Institute will include an intelligence center, a web-based community access site with real-time crime data and resources for specific problem solving efforts.

In 2000, the Ceasefire Public Awareness Campaign was launched with posters, billboards, theater ads, bus cards and radio advertisements. All carried a message to deter violent crime by making young people aware of the penalties that exist as a result of violent activity.

AIS PRISim System

The phrase, “As real as it gets” best describes the Department’s new mobile firearm training simulator called PRISim.

The PRISim system replaces the Department’s Firearm Training Simulator (FATS) that has been in use for several years. “While the FATS system did a decent job of teaching officers the mechanics of shooting, it didn’t thoroughly develop their decision-making skills in the use of firearms,” stated Sgt. Michael Anderson, Supervisor of Training for the Department. “The PRISim system depicts real-life scenarios that officers face such as domestic disputes, warrant service, and security breaches.”

Unlike other mobile firearm training systems the PRISim is equipped with the patented ShootBack Cannon which allows the instructor to fire a nylon ball projectile back at the officer any time the officer fires. “You hear it, see it and feel it,” stated Sgt. Anderson. “After an officer is hit by a projectile the officer quickly understands the consequences for not taking cover quickly enough or not positioning themselves properly.”

Sgt. Anderson said the Department’s reasoning for purchasing the new system is to help officers become more aware of their actions should they encounter a hostile situation, and also to overcome physiological and psychological responses under stress. He added that stress is often to blame for fatal errors in police confrontations. And officers who have been in actual gunfights have stated that what happens in PRISim scenarios is exactly the way it happens in the field.

Another unique feature of the PRISim is that any scenario can be created from broad daylight to total darkness. This is important because most of the Department’s shootings take place in low light situations. During the training, officers use a laser flashlight, which allows them to see only the object that the light is being pointed toward.

The mobile training, which takes about 20 minutes, will save the Department and St. Louis valuable time and police manpower. Prior to the PRISim system, officers would have to travel to the Department’s shooting range for firearm training, spending anywhere from 60 to 90 minutes out of service. Now the training simply comes to the area patrol stations.

The SLMPD has integrated PRISim simulators into the police academy training, and will likely make it a part of officers’ mandatory training.

P.O. Kevin Lauman engaged in firearm training inside the PRISim, the Department’s new mobile training simulator.

Police Athletic League Grant

In January 2001, the Danforth Foundation awarded the St. Louis Metropolitan Police Department's Police Athletic League (P.A.L.) a $200,000, two-year grant.

The grant is being used to support the expansion of the P.A.L. program to include the delivery of athletic and mentoring services to over 1,000 area youths. A permanent P.A.L. Unit has also been established at Police Headquarters and a staff is in place to oversee its daily operations.

"We are very excited about the donation from the Danforth Foundation," said P.A.L. President Major Gregory Hawkins. "The grant further illustrates the community's support of the program and how important P.A.L. is to the Department and St. Louis."

P.A.L. was revitalized within the St. Louis Metropolitan Police Department in January 1996. Today, more than 25 police officers serve as volunteer coaches to work with area youths. The children participate on a variety of sporting teams including baseball, basketball, boxing, volleyball, soccer and girl's double-dutch.

The athletic and mentoring services offered by P.A.L. have enhanced the quality of life for many area youths. "When you see the smiles on the faces of these children, you realize the enormous benefits that come from your time and commitment," stated Sgt. Daryle Noble, P.A.L. Program Coordinator.

In the fall of 2001, P.A.L. Memorial Park, located at the corner of Shenandoah and Ohio, was dedicated to the St. Louis Metropolitan Police Department's Police Athletic League and the families and children of the Fox Park Neighborhood, who participate in P.A.L. activities.

The park was built in memory of St. Louis Metropolitan Police Department officers who lost their lives in the line of duty. The project was jointly funded through Cardinals Care, St. Louis Cardinals Pitcher Darryl Kile and Clayco Construction.

P.A.L. is funded with the Department's asset forfeiture dollars and private donations such as the Danforth Grant. To make donations or to participate in the program, please contact Major Gregory Hawkins at (314) 444-5775.

African-American Historical Photo Donation

The Ethical Society of Police, Inc. donated historical portraits of the Department's first African-American officers to the St. Louis Police Academy during Black History Month in February 2001.

The six portraits were taken in the early 1900's and were unveiled at a ceremony at the police academy. The pictures have been permanently mounted on the lobby wall outside the Department's library.

The display includes photos of Allan W. Wilkinson and Andrew W. Gordon (1901), who were the first two African-Americans appointed to serve on the police force; Lt. Ira Copper (1906), who became the Department's first African American Retired St. Louis Police Lieutenant Joseph Robinson presented the portraits to the Ethical Society of Police, Inc., and the organization donated them to the St. Louis Police Academy.

At the dedication ceremony in 2001, P.O. Joan Glover, President of the Ethical Society of Police said, “We are very excited about these portraits, because they illustrate an important history at the SLMPD.” She added, “Displaying these portraits also pays homage to those officers who paved the way for many more African-American officers to join the Department.”

Awards

Medal of Valor

The Medal of Valor is the highest award the St. Louis Community bestows upon the men and women who protect St. Louis residents. Six St. Louis Metropolitan Police Department officers received the Medal of Valor in 2000. Police Officer Christina Gonzales was shot in the leg in an apartment, while attempting to apprehend a suspect wanted for a shooting. Detective Anthony Anderson and Officer Jeremiah Henning pulled Officer Gonzales to safety with the armed suspect still in the apartment. Sgt. Joseph Kriska entered a burning house and rescued two people who had been asleep and were unaware of the fire. Sgt. Steve Schmittgens entered a burning home and rescued the resident, who was trapped inside. Officer Brian Jost apprehended a suspect wanted for carjacking, robbery, and rape after the suspect pulled a weapon on the officer.

Distinguished Service Citation

Officer Christina Gonzales received Distinguished Service Citation for Valor, the highest award given by the department to an officer who, in the line of duty, performs an act of outstanding bravery at the risk of imminent personal danger to his or her own life. Officer Gonzales was shot while attempting to apprehend a suspect wanted in a shooting.

Meritorious Service Citations

These officers received Meritorious Service Citations in 1999 and 2000 for outstanding performances in the face of personal danger.
